Nine-tenths of the people are directly interested only in the scourity of circulating notes of the banks, for these are in every man's pocket, and they cannot be affected in value by anything the banks may do, the Government being pledged to their restemption. It is also pledged to their restemption. It is also instructive to note the very small number of faitures since the change from the adoption of any terms whatever, accompanying the proposal with a pledge that if it accepted them, its States should be admitted to representation on the floors of Congress on them, its States should be admitted to representation on the floors of Congress on their integrity that I have always relied and still rely.
